Re: Request for Return of The Saint Consulting Group, Inc.'s Confidential, Propriety Business Information

Dear Mr. Bownson:

We are counsel for The Saint Consulting Group, Inc. ("TSCG"). It has come to TSCG's recent attention that your companies are in wrongful possession of hundreds of pages of TSCG's confidential, proprietary business information relating to a development project in Mundelein, Illinois. On behalf of TSCG, we respectfully request the immediate return of all such documentation in either your companies' or its counsel's possession. We further respectfully request that your companies immediately destroy any copies of said documentation that may have been made.

Please know that TSCG will take all steps necessary to protect its confidential, proprietary business information and will utilize all legal remedies available to accomplish the orderly return of that information, including but not limited to an action for replevin and relief under the Uniform Trade Secrets Act. Your companies may have obtained wrongful possession of this documentation through a current or former employee of TSCG. As you may know, all such employees are bound by strict post-employment confidentiality restrictions. We trust that your companies (either directly or through counsel) did not, and will not in the future, take any action to wrongfully induce any TSCG employee or former employee to breach his or her express confidentiality obligations by providing TSCG's confidential, proprietary business information to your companies (in either written or oral form). Such action would amount to tortious interference with advantageous business relations and TSCG would be forced to take legal action in response.

Please send all TSCG documentation relating to the Mundelein project to me immediately at the address listed above. We appreciate your prompt attention to this matter and thank you for your anticipated cooperation.

Very truly yours,

Diane Saunders
